How to output my network on laptop to the router? - [Solved]
2019/07/08

Hi, guys! I've got a laptop and my own router. I'm using the campus wifi which needs username and password to log on. I want to transfer files between my devices without going through the public router. But at the same time I want all my devices to connect to Internet. I first tried to bridge the router but I found there is no place to enter the username but only the password. Then I think maybe I can connect my laptop to the router, and share the wifi on my laptop? I don't know if the question is clear enough. Do you guys have any solution to this problem? My laptop runs Win10 and the router is TP-LINK. And I have an Ethernet cable. Thanks! Thanks!
