Wireless Network Connection Speed Much Faster Than Actual Speedtest/Operating Speed - [Solved]

2019/06/30

So I'm on windows xp service pack 3, have a usb Netgear a6100 WiFi Adapter (which I have tested on another computer and gets much higher speeds) plugged into usb 2.0. According to netgear genie and the wireless network connection information, the network I'm connected has a speed of 433.0 Mbps with full bars of connection. However, when I do a speed test I never get over 15 Mbps. I've never had anything quite like this, so I don't even know where to start. If anyone could give me some pointers, I would appreciate it.
